

Please stop your attempt to limit what XM radio and other non Rupert Murdoch/Ted Turner ... entities are allowed to offer it's paid subscribers. Hearing you and congress want to limit what XM radio can offer is the same old story of cable vs. the networks. Networks vs. DirectTV ... I work for a large company, who has lost sales and market share to offshore competition. Did my company, or I have the benefit of the FCC and congress thwarting the competition. No. And why, because competition breeds improvement, not contempt. I'm sure if the big mega media owners had it their way, no competition would ever exist. We would be watching 3 networks, with the message controlled by few. Sounds a little communistic doesn't it!

Why doesn't the FCC support competition and growth, instead of "reaching" to major media giants when they think they've gotten outsmarted by an upcoming new technology that subscribers pay for and support?
